

Haiku – Low tables, consolle Enzo Berti, 2019

The project takes its inspiration from the concept of our memory, reimagining simple and iconic forms with echoes from the past. Central to the design is the upright hexagonal structure typically used in building construction that, in this particular context, is interpreted as a joint onto which the feet are attached perpendicularly. This style detail is reminiscent of 1950's furniture design. The base of the table is painted finished metallic wire drawn and the top in marble.
